

AUDITION NOTICE

Funny Money

Written by Ray Cooney

Directed by Jim Russell

Henry A. Perkins, a mild mannered C.P.A, accidentally picks up the wrong briefcase filled with money. Henry assumes it is illicit cash. He decides to keep it and immediately wants to depart for points unknown with his wife. However, the police soon arrive with unfortunate news - Henry is dead (or, a man with his briefcase was found dead). Throw an impatient taxi driver along with the arrival of an additional officer who suspects Henry of soliciting in the men's loo, followed by a dangerous gangster who is not afraid to kill again, and you have an evening of hilarious theater filled with mistaken identities.
